MANAGER'S EFFECTIVENESS INDEX (MEI)

What is it?

The MEI provides feedback to mid-level managers whose subordinate supervisors have received their own Supervisor's Effectiveness Index (SEI) report. The MEI helps leaders gauge the overall supervisory effectiveness of their program, provide coaching and development information for their direct reports, and clarify leadership priorities and development plans.

Why does it matter?

This report shows the leader's impact throughout the organization that is under his/her control. While this leader is directly responsible for establishing the conditions in which engagement can thrive for his own direct reports (as measured through his/her SEI), he/she also has responsibility for setting an example and ensuring that his subordinate supervisors are doing the same for their direct reports.

How does it work?

The MEI is an average of the manager's subordinate supervisors' SEI scores (three is the minimum number of subordinate supervisors needed to receive an MEI). Managers will receive their scores along with an informational sheet on how to use the scores.
